USC Hosts Healthy Carolina Farmers Market

The University of South Carolina will serve as the host for a new on-campus farmers market. The market's grand opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony is scheduled to be held at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, September 16, 2008, on the campus in front of the Russell House on Greene Street in Columbia, SC.

Hugh Weathers, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Patricia Moore-Pastides, MPH, wife of USC's new President Harris Pastides, will open the new market. Mrs. Pastides' background is in public health with an emphasis in nutrition, so she is excited at the prospect of having a farmers market on campus. Commissioner Weathers, a graduate of USC and a dairy farmer with a passion for helping young people, enthusiastically endorses the farmers market as an opportunity to share fresh, wholesome locally-grown produce and products with USC students and staff.

Commissioner's School wraps up another successful year

Forty three high school students descended on Clemson University for the week-long South Carolina Commissioner's School of Agriculture from July 19-25. The students who came from across the state and as far away as Tennessee spent the week exploring career paths in agriculture and natural resources.

"We had a great group of students this year and their enthusiasm and eagerness to learn was thrilling," said Katie Black, Coordinator of Student Relations and Recruitment for the College of Agriculture, Forestry, and Life Sciences at Clemson. "We've worked hard to not only challenge them academically, but have a lot of fun while learning."

Lexington County couple sets record with pumpkin

Frank and Tina Finders of Lexington couldn't be happier with the new state record their pumpkin set on August 1 at the State Farmers Market in Columbia.

The Atlantic Giant pumpkin, grown in Richland County at Tina Finders' grandmother's home garden, shattered the previous record of 737 pounds set back in 2006. The Finders' pumpkin tipped the scales, donated for the occasion by Carolina Scales, at 897 pounds.

The pumpkin measures 186 inches around and grew for 69 days. The giant fruit was loaded onto a U-Haul trailer and moved across town to where it was weighed at the Farmers Market.

South Carolinians appointed to United Soybean Board

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ed Schafer has announced 19 appointments and two alternate appointments to the United Soybean Board that includes two members from South Carolina.

Cecil B. Eaddy, a soybean grower for the past 34 years, from Manning has been reappointed to his second three-year term. A 1974 graduate of the University of Georgia, he is the owner of Anglewood Angus Farm. He is also a member of Farm Bureau Soybean Feed Grain and Hay Committee and Clemson Extension Advisory Committee.

The Incredible Inspectors of Edible Eggs

Those of you loyal readers of this column know that we use it from time to time to let you know what all we do at the Department of Agriculture. I hope you enjoy a behind-the-scenes look at the people and programs who work hard to promote agriculture and food quality assurance here in our state.

A few years back, the National Egg Board reminded us of the incredible, edible egg. In this column, we'll let you know about what it takes to inspect those eggs. I want to give you an inside look at how our graders and inspectors work to ensure that the poultry and egg products you buy are safe and wholesome.

Here in South Carolina poultry is a major commodity. In fact, it's number one in cash value. The industry is a multi-million dollar industry which not only includes broiler chickens, turkeys, other domestic birds, and, yes, eggs. We will not be able to clarify which of these comes first, however.

The Department's Poultry and Egg Grading and Inspection Program is a collaborative effort with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. We have 24 employees who ensure that products are prepared under sanitary conditions according to USDA regulations and guidelines. Some are assigned to resident plants located throughout the state, while others travel from one location to another performing relief or

fee work. No matter where or when, if an egg is being processed and packaged in the state, our inspectors are there. Holidays, weekends and nights - someone from this Division of the agency is in place to ensure that the Food Safety and Inspection Service is carried out.

Graders must follow commercial, government, or institutional specifications to make sure the requirements are met. Can't have grade A eggs without us grading them. Phyllis Davis, program manager for Poultry and Egg Grading and Inspection programs, says that grading provides a standardized means of describing the marketability of a particular food.

The Department also has five inspectors who ensure the men and women in the armed forces have a safe meal too. The poultry and egg grading service also inspects the SOPAKCO plant in Bennettsville that makes Meals Ready to Eat (M.R.E.). Those little packages are shipped all over the world and provide a hearty meal to our service members in far off places. Not only are they used for the military, but those same meals are also handed out after natural disasters such as hurricanes or tsunamis. They pack a lot of calories and nutrients for their size, and they can taste pretty good!

Those meals are inspected for a whole host of things because of the way the meals are handled. Inspectors and graders also perform pre-operation sanitation to ensure the product is produced under sanitary conditions. Our inspectors make sure the meals meet the military's specifications. We can't let those who protect us not have the best quality food available on the front line.

Our inspectors have a wealth of knowledge and experience and do a fantastic job. They put in a lot of hours not only performing inspections, but in training. That training is done on the job, by licensed graders and supervisors. The USDA Agricultural Marketing Service has schools periodically to update graders on new regulations. Under the federal program, quarterly visits are made to each licensed employee to keep them up-to-date.

Our poultry and egg graders and inspectors are not concerned with answering the question - "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" We leave that question to those more philosophical in nature. In the United States, since we consume over a hundred pounds of poultry and several hundred eggs a year per person, it's good to know that Phyllis and her team are working 24/7 to ensure us that those incredible edible eggs are incredibly safe.

Healthy Carolina Farmers Market

Market hours will be from 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. and will feature a variety of vendors offering fresh produce and other South Carolina products. The local farmers market will be within walking distance of the State House. A city garage, located on Bull Street only one block from the market location will be available for parking.

The Healthy Carolina Farmers Market is a collaborative effort between the South Carolina Department of Agriculture, Healthy Carolina, and the USC Student Government. The farmers market will provide a "taste" of South Carolina fresh produce and products for students, faculty, and others who live and work in the downtown area. The new farmers market will be a convenient, fresh market shopping experience for consumers and a welcomed marketing venue for local farmers.

For more information about the Healthy Carolina Farmers Market, contact Roy Copelan, Market Manager, 803-917-1119.

Commissioner's School

This is the fifth year the program has been held and each year it grows larger. The students spent the week in hands-on scientific exploration along with workshops related to academic integrity, teamwork, personal growth and leadership. The students chose academic tracks related to their interests, and they were also exposed to organic food growth, greenhouse production, athletic turf-grass management during a tour of Death Valley, animal and veterinary sciences, packaging science, aquaculture, forestry and wildlife and natural resource management. They also took several field trips including visits to university research farms, the Clemson Experimental Forest, and rafting on the Chattooga River.

"Our staff and the folks at Clemson put on a fantastic program," said Hugh Weathers, South Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture. "It's always rewarding to see these young folks get excited about agriculture."

High-school students interested in participating in next year's Commissioner's School or attending Clemson's agriculture program, should contact Katie Black at the College of Agriculture, Forestry, and Life Sciences at Clemson. She can be reached at hulse@clemson.edu or 864-656-6662.

Pumpkin Record

Frank Finders said he attributed the growth to good soil, organic fertilizers, shade, good care, and hard work. He had to keep the pumpkin, which grew at the rate of 60 pounds per day, constantly watered during the hottest days of the summer.

I am impressed every time I see it," Frank Finders said. "I hope this encourages other people in South Carolina to grow something."

State Fair officials asked the Finders if they can use the pumpkin in October to show at the Fair. The Finders hope to harvest the seeds after the Fair to grow another pumpkin next year and beat their own record.

United Soybean Board

Henry V. Elliott, Jr., of Andrews was appointed as an alternate member. Elliott manages Elliott Farms LLC in Kingstree. He continues to serve on the South Carolina Soybean Board, and the SC Farm Bureau Board of Directors where has served for 20 years.

"Soybeans are an important crop to our state, and having these two growers sitting at the national table allows them to bring forward issues important to South Carolina," said Hugh Weathers, South Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture.

Eaddy and Elliott were nominated by the South Carolina Soybean Board. All appointees serve 3-year terms beginning December 2008.

The 68-member Board is authorized by the Soybean Promotion, Research and Consumer Information Act. The Secretary selected the appointees from soybean producers nominated by Qualified State Soybean Boards. The Board's goal is to strengthen the position of soybeans in the marketplace and to maintain and expand domestic and foreign markets and uses for soybeans and soybean products.

For more information about South Carolina's soybean industry, call Aaron Wood, 803-734-1767.

Olde-Style Chili

- |   |                                     |
|---|-------------------------------------|
| 1 pound ground beef                                   | 2 cans (15 to 16 ounces each)       |
| 2 large onions, chopped (2 cups)                      | kidney beans, undrained             |
| 2 cans (14-1/2 ounces each) whole tomatoes, undrained | 2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce |
|   | 2 tablespoons chili powder          |

Cook beef and about 1-1/2 cups of the onion in 4 quart Dutch oven over medium heat 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until beef is brown and onion is tender; drain.

Stir in tomatoes, beans, tomato sauce and chili powder, breaking up tomatoes. Cook uncovered over medium heat about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until desired consistency. Serves 10.
